11/14	As opening night approaches, here's a word from our directors Alik and Charles. Come see the show November 17 and 18 at 7:30pm and November 18 and 19 at 2:00pm. Photo by Mike Kitaif Link to purchase tickets: https://flagler.universitytickets.com	Q & A with Alik and Charles  1. As the director, what is your role and what are your responsibilities? A director's job is to curate the overall vision of the piece-to make sure every part comes together to make a cohesive picture. It is my and Charles' job to help the actors develop their characters, and help inform and refine their performances. We take a deeper look at the material as a whole to aid both actors and designers create with the same intentions behind the story we're trying to tell. 2. Describe the process of working with actors to develop their characters. It's such a unique form of collaboration. Sitting down with a person and trying to get into the brain of someone completely different. It involves a lot of time looking at the script and picking every word pause and turn of phrase for what it can say about the characters we see. 3. What was your favorite scene to direct? Getting it back was definitely one of the more fun scenes to direct. It has such a simple and viscerally understandable central concept to it and some things fell into place very quickly when it came to the characters and feeling out where they were coming from, so it was a joy to mold the things I saw in it since the beginning. 4. What are you most excited about for this capstone production? I just can't wait to see what this show becomes by the end of the run after living with the piece for so long.
